

Questions about questions

1) What is a question?

A question is something that needs an answer.

2) Why do some questions have multiple parts?

a) Should related questions be relegated to subquestions?

Not unless they help to answer one larger question.

b) What is the purpose of breaking questions down?

Some questions have multiple steps that need answering one by one. It is sometimes easier to break them down into subquestions.

i) Why do some sub questions have multiple parts?

Subquestions ask about algorithms or something else that requires multiple steps.

ii) What is the purpose of breaking sub questions down?

To make each step more clear.

iii) Should you break down something that really only has one part?

No. That would be silly.

Here is a paragraph of text in-between questions. Why would this be necessary? I really am not sure, but there is probably a use for it.

MARVEL

3) What is S.H.I.E.L.D.?

An organization that protects the world from technology it is not ready for. This can include alien technology.

4) What does S.H.I.E.L.D. stand for?

a) What was its original meaning?

Supreme Headquarters, International Espionage, Law-Enforcement Division

b) What is its current meaning?

Strategic Homeland Intervention Espionage Logistics Directorate

5) Who is the current director of S.H.I.E.L.D.?

Phil Coulson ... However, Nick Fury is still involved.

This is another random paragraph just to show it can be done